Roy Bailey

Friday 24 March
8.00pm
Brunswick Mechanics
Institute
Booking no. 14

Enda Kenny

Roy Bailey is another of our special guests from England. Quite apart from possessing an extraordinary singing voice, Roy is one of the most masterful live performers. He is blessed with that rare ability to draw an audience to laugh, sing and participate with him in an atmosphere that becomes a celebration of life and unity. Enda Kenny is a local singer and songwriter whose first CD Twelve Songs has received much attention in the mainstream media of late.

Brunswick Women's Choir

Friday 17 March
8.00pm
Brunswick Town Hall
Booking no. 4

Coco's Lunch

The Brunswick Women's Choir celebrates that most ancient of instruments, the human voice, specialising in traditional and contemporary pieces from all round the world. Coco's Lunch are Lisa Young, Sue Johnson, Sallie Harvey, Nicola Eveleigh and Anita Skandrajah. Drawing on traditional sources and their own backgrounds in improvisation and composition, they perform original a cappella works with exquisite harmonies and wild improvisation. A night of wonderful singing.

Dave Swarbrick and his All New One Man Show Vladimir Kocibelli and his Band

Thursday 23 March
8.00pm
Brunswick Town Hall
Booking no. 12

Dave Swarbrick is the essential English fiddle player: his work with the Alex Campbell Group, Martin Carthy and Fairport Convention in the sixties and seventies set the parameters for a whole new genre of English traditional music. He is also a wonderful natural wit and raconteur with a swag of great stories, and will premiere his new one man show at the Festival. Vladimir Kocibelli first appeared at the Festival last year where he made a huge impression with his effervescent personality and virtuoso violin playing. Since that time he has performed at many major festivals throughout Australia, and has appeared on several SBS television shows. Vladimir and his group will perform both traditional music from his homeland Albania and the wild gypsy music from Eastern Europe.

Ruth Apelt Jean-Paul Wabotai

Saturday 18 March
3.00pm
Brunswick Town Hall
Booking no. 6

Ruth Apelt is a young singer and songwriter from Queensland who has been developing her craft for the past seven years in a thriving Brisbane music scene. In 1992 one of her songs won the national Labour Day song competition and in April '94 she travelled to Nashville to record her debut CD, Told You Twice. Ruth is currently promoting her CD with a much welcomed trip down south.

Jean-Paul Wabotai was born in Zaire and like many African musicians found himself in Paris, and went on to play in the Angelique Kidjo band. Whilst touring with that band in Australia Jean-Paul fell in love with the country and is now resident. He is a singer of power and passion:

using voice and body as his only instruments he 'creates a whole new world of music, that not only invokes the land of his birth, but echoes the sensibilities of the whole planet'.
